About Us

The Journal of Eastern Caribbean Studies (J ECS) is the only area studies journal dedicated to the showcasing of research and knowledge about the small state experience in the Eastern Caribbean, their economies, their relations of power, their cultural affect and socio-economic challenges.

The J ECS' Editorial Advisory Committee comprises faculty drawn from multiple departments at the University of the West Indies, Cave Hill Campus, reflecting its avowedly multidisciplinary approach to knowledge creation. Its Editorial Advisory Board extends to other scholars drawn from across the Caribbean diaspora.

Contextually, the J ECS links the academic terrains of the Eastern Caribbean, the Commonwealth Caribbean, and other developing countries in the Americas. We publish original articles interrogating social and economic conditions relevant to this region and other small island states on a wide range of topics not limited to: –

- Entrepreneurship
- Education
- Gender
- Sexuality
- Tourism
- Development
- Political Economy
- Economics
- Governance
- Finance
- Crime

In addition to original academic articles we also publish commentaries, book reviews, interviews and technical notes.
